SOCIAL SCIENCES and/or FRENCH LANGUAGE

The Summer School's two tracks of study are offered in each of the two summer sessions.

SOCIAL SCIENCES TRACK

Students of the social sciences track will choose one class of intensive study for the duration of the session. Classes are taught by Sciences Po professors who are assisted by graduate students. Most classes are conducted in English, but students may also choose a class taught entirely in French. In addition to their social sciences class, participants may also elect to take additional French language courses at the Alliance Française.

FRENCH LANGUAGE TRACK

Students of the French language track take classes in one of six levels adapted to their knowledge of the French language. At all levels, language study accounts for the majority of class time. At the beginner levels, this learning is reinforced through small-group tutorials and "real-life" activities including Outdoor French classes. At advanced levels, students take a variety of classes designed to prepare them for study within the French education system. In addition, students at every level take lecture classes on topics in social sciences.

Summer School students may take part in the June session, the July session (four weeks each), or in both sessions (eight weeks). Students who participate in two sessions may choose the same track twice, or elect to change tracks for the second session.

PARTNERSHIP WITH THE ALLIANCE FRANÇAISE

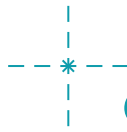

The Summer School is proud to partner with the Alliance Française Paris Île-de-France, the Parisian headquarters of the internationally renowned Alliance Française network. Students of the social sciences track may choose to take additional French language classes at the Alliance Française. Students of the French language track may elect to formally assess their language acquisition by taking a DELF or DALF French language exam, the leading French third-party language assessment, administered at the Alliance Française at the end of the July session.

"I loved this month living in Paris... I discovered little streets, and there are bits of history everywhere in the city. I got to see the Tour de France; and Bastille day was amazing – the highlight of my trip, with unbelievable fireworks at the Eiffel tower."

LIFE IN THE HEART OF PARIS

The "City of Light;" the inspiration for countless writings, artworks and films; or the most beautiful city in the world. However they choose to think of Paris, Summer School students know that they have a unique opportunity to study at Sciences Po while living out the summer in the heart of the French capital.

The Summer School makes the most of its Parisian setting, with class trips to museum exhibitions, guided tours through historic districts, and Outdoor French classes. From the Sciences Po campus in the Saint-Germain-des-Prés neighbourhood, Summer School students can easily reach some of the city's most famous landmarks in fifteen minutes or less, including the Musée d'Orsay, the Luxembourg gardens, and the Seine river. Outside of class, Summer School students use their Sciences Po student card to benefit from significant entrance discounts to a vast number of cultural institutions, including most museums, cinemas, concerts and theatres, as well as monthly public transport passes.

Summer School students have the option to obtain housing through Sciences Po at the Cité Internationale Universitaire de Paris (CIUP).
