to the tracks, but many don't have them and can't get on the train. If you get closer to the tracks than you can see, someone at the area that is accessible, the station staff will go and get a ramp and help you on to the train. Many lines help you on right away, but the JR lines seem to have a policy to make you wait until for the next train even if there is one right in front of you.

Riding, Transferring, And Getting Of The Train

Once on the train, you will likely find an area that does not have a bench and you can sit there without worrying that your wheelchair is blocking the doors. This is a great relief when riding during busy hours (6:00-9:00am and 9:00pm-midnight).
