

Completion Requirements

In order to complete the program of study at the Graduate School of Public Policy (GraSPP), you must be enrolled for two years or longer and earn 46 course credits or more. In addition, you must complete the required courses in your program (sub-specialization) and policy stream when applicable, and earn credits for them.

You may include up to eight credits earned for courses taken at the University of Tokyo's any other graduate schools, faculties or Center for Global Education when calculating the required credits for completion of the GraSPP degree.

You cannot register more than 38 credits of courses in one academic year. This includes credits for Research Paper, Thesis, and/or Internship as well. Please refer to the University of Tokyo Rules for the Graduate School of Public Policy in regards to credits obtained at another graduate school or obtained before admission to GraSPP.

Take note that you basically cannot register for courses which have the same code as the courses for which you have already earned credits.

Incoming double degree students can transfer up to 23 credits to GraSPP from their home university. In addition, the enrollment period at their home university (one year) can be counted into the enrollment period at GraSPP.

Program-specific completion requirements:

※ A module which meets more than one completion requirement will be counted as meeting all relevant completion requirements.

For example, the course below will be counted as credits of Case Studies and Practical Training.

Category	Course Code	Course Title	Main Faculty	Term	Credit	Practical Training
Case Studies	51400XX	Case Study ( Policy)	*	S1S2	2	○

※ Take note that if a course is not listed in the Class Subject List, it is not offered in this academic year.

International Program (MPP/IP)

for students who enrolled in MPP/IP on or after April 1, 2017

<NOTES>

Students must complete the required courses and earn credits for them in one of the policy streams of their choice from Economic Policy, Finance and Development (EPFD) or Public Management and International Relations (PMIR).
